London, May 6.
Yesterday arrived the Mails due from Holland and Flanders.

Hague, May 12.
TIS not doubted that the Ratifications of the Peace between France and this State will be exchanged to Day at Utrecht, because the Ministers of this State who came hither some Days ago, returned Yesterday to Utrecht, with the Resolution of their High Mightynesses to proceed forthwith to the said Exchange. It has also been resolved to dismiss as soon as possible all the foreign Troops. Baron Kirchner who was to have set out the 10th Instant from Utrecht for Vienna, is still there; and 'tis now talked he will first send a Courier to the Emperour and wait his return: The Earl of Strafford continues his Endeavours to dispose that Minister to stay, giving him some kind of Hope that France will soften the Conditions proposed to the Emperour and Empire. There is no Account yet of the Intentions of the four Circles of the Rhine assembled at Hailbron. The last Letters from Vienna, of the 29th past, say nothing, either of the Arrival of Count Sinsendorf, or of the Departure of Prince Eugene; mean while the Presence of that Prince at Hailbron is necessary, to second there the Designs of the Emperour.

Utrecht, May 12. The Ministers of Savoy were the first to exchange the Ratifications of their Peace with France, having done it the 6th Instant at the Marshal d'Uxelles's House. The 9th the Ministers Plenipotentiaries of Great-Britain exchanged theirs at the Lord Bishop of Bristol's House; and those of the King of Prussia exchanged theirs the 11th at the Earl of Strafford's House. All was done without Ceremony. The Elector of Bavaria's Renunciation of the Spanish Netherlands being arrived, it has occasioned an Incident which at first surprized the Ministers of this State: For when the Plenipotentiaries of France shewed to the latter the said Act of Renunciation, turning over the Leaves of it, and letting them see the Elector's Hand and Seal at the End of it, the States Plenipotentiaries desired to hear it read, that they might be assured it was in due Form: To this those of France answered, that the Treaty did not oblige them to that, but they would assure them it was conformable to the Tenour of the Treaty of Peace: So they folded up the said Act of Renunciation, and having inclosed it in a Cover sealed with their Seal, they put it into the Hands of the Plenipotentiaries of Great-Britain. Upon the whole, 'tis the general Opinion however, that the Ratifications between France and this State, will be exchanged before Night still. Besides the Conditions proposed by France to the Emperour and Empire, the Baron de Malknecht, Minister of the Elector of Bavaria newly arrived here, demands the Marquisate of Burgau for his Master, and a Right to put a Garrison into Ausbourg, which is a free Imperial City. To alleviate this, 'tis insinuated that France will admit that the City of Mantua shall be garrisoned Half with Imperialists and Half with neutral Troops, nay possibly may agree that the whole Garrison shall be Imperialists; That as to Comachio the Court of France will desist from intermeddling in that Affair; And as for the Restoration of the Prince of Mirandola, that Court may content it self with an Equivalent. 'Tis added, that as to the Empire, the King of France will perhaps desist from the Expression that the Rhine shall serve for the Barrier between the Empire and France, and content himself with the Renovation of the Treaty of Ryswick, with the Additions contained in the Terms of Peace last proposed.

London, May 6.
